Historical Happenings

January 3 — Washington, D.C.
Marvin Chester Stone of Washington was issued a patent today for the manufacture of drinking straws that are made from manila paper coated with paraffin wax. Cheap enough to be disposed of after just one use and more enjoyable and sanitary than the current practice of using a hollow stalk of rye.

January 13 — Washington, D. C. Geographic Society planning magazine
A meeting was held today at the Cosmos Club between 33 distinguished men who have established "a society for the increase and diffusion of geographic knowledge." Known as the National Geographic Society, the fledgling organization hopes to sponsor expeditions and research project, and to publish a National Geographic Magazine.

March 14 — New England Worst blizzard in memory
*By the calendar, spring is a week away, but under 50 inches of snow, flowers will have to wait to show their blooms. Some 400 people have died since the storm began March 11. Throughout New England, trains have frozen to their tracks. Telegraph lines have fallen, leaving small towns isolated. In New Hampshire, snow drifts are reported as high as 15 feet. Future generations just may call 1888 "The Year of the Great Blizzard."

May 3 — Washington
Mount Rainier tunnel completed as two work teams meet in middle of mountain.

October — Baton Rouge, Louisiana
A medicine man in town is using a new come-on to sell his "cure-all" tonic. He pulls teeth free as a way of getting people to by his extract, called Wild West Bitters. And "Dr." Frank Wallace not only pulls teeth, he also presents a vaudeville show that includes comedians and banjo players. Local dentist at first complained about Wallace's tooth-pulling. He has pacified them, however, by telling them that when he pulls teeth it gives the dentists the chance to replace them.

November 6 — Harrison wins Presidency despite loss in popular vote
Benjamin Harrison lost the popular vote to Grover Cleveland, 5,444,000 to5,540,000 in an eight-man race. However, he won 233 of the electoral votes, far more than needed for the election. Cleveland was next with 168 electoral votes.
